Widely acclaimed as one of the most imaginative and sensitive pianists of his generation, London-based Japanese pianist-composer Motoki Hirai performs regularly in the music capitals of the Far East, America and Europe as well as the UK. In March 2011, Motoki gave a hugely successful sold-out recital in Carnegie Hall in New York. Motoki is performing a series of charity concerts to support Japan in light of the recent disaster, touring across the UK throughout the year including the Cadogan Hall and Wigmore Hall in London, and is due to return to the Queen's Hall, Edinburgh in October 2011.
